PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

Set of Two Rattan Armchairs with Matching Side Table France, mid-20th century This charming three-piece set comprises a pair of sculptural rattan armchairs accompanied by a coordinating side table, exemplifying the refined craftsmanship of French rattan furniture from the mid-20th century. The chairs feature gracefully curved barrel backs, tightly woven seats, and elegant cane arm supports, all raised on bamboo legs joined by cross-braced stretchers that provide both stability and visual balance. Decorative turquoise-toned bindings accent the edges of the backs and frames, introducing a subtle graphic detail that enlivens the warm honeyed tones of the rattan. The accompanying side table echoes the same construction and materials, with a woven top and slender bamboo base designed to nest comfortably between the chairs. Such sets were popular in winter gardens, verandas, and indoor sitting rooms, reflecting the period's fascination with light, natural materials and relaxed yet sophisticated leisure furnishings. While the maker is unrecorded, the quality of execution and stylistic details are consistent with French artisanal workshops specializing in rattan and bamboo furniture during the postwar era.
