PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

19th Century Hand-Carved Wooden Dog Head with Movable Jaw – Finely crafted from dark hardwood, this antique figural carving features the detailed head of a dog, possibly a French Bulldog or similar breed, with expressive eyes, upright ears, and realistic facial folds. The jaw is articulated, allowing it to open and close via a small mechanism, adding charm and whimsy to the piece. Likely created as a novelty handle, cane top, or decorative element, it showcases the artisan's skill in both realism and functionality. A rare and collectible example of 19th-century folk carving. 10"H
