PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

A delightful French mid-century hand-painted set comprising six fish plates and one platter, signed by the renowned Vallauris pottery workshop. Vallauris, a historic town in the South of France, became widely recognized for its artistic ceramics in the 20th century, attracting master potters and even artists like Pablo Picasso. Known for its expressive forms and vibrant hand-painted designs, Vallauris ceramics were popular for both functional and decorative pieces. This set showcases the pottery's flair for color and design, with each plate featuring a unique and lively fish motif. The platter is particularly notable, with a sculpted fish accenting the rim, adding texture and dimension. The combination of green, brown, and natural earthy tones reflects mid-century modern design influences, making these pieces ideal for collectors or anyone seeking a striking table setting with a touch of French artistry and history.
