PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

Early 20th Century Cast Bronze Right Hand — A finely detailed cast bronze sculpture of a right hand, dating to the early 1900s, capturing the naturalistic contours, lines, and lifelike proportions of the human form. The piece features a gently open palm with individually articulated fingers, rendered with subtle surface texture that suggests direct casting from life. Its rich, naturally aged patina enhances the sense of depth and history, while the underside reveals evidence of the casting process, making it a striking example of early 20th-century bronze craftsmanship.
