PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

This exquisite pair of Italian demi-lune consoles from the 19th century embodies the elegance and sophistication of classical Italian design. The consoles feature a beautifully aged patina, with the original painted finish showcasing a harmonious blend of muted cream tones and soft, worn detailing. The half-moon tops are adorned with a striking faux marble finish, reminiscent of the rich stonework popular during the era. The tops are intricately detailed with swirling patterns that add depth and visual interest, enhancing the overall luxurious appearance. The consoles are supported by elegantly tapered, fluted legs, each topped with delicate rosettes and flanked by round medallions. A laurel wreath motif runs along the apron, a classical symbol of victory and achievement, lending a sense of timeless grandeur to the pieces. These consoles, with their graceful curves and refined details, would be a stunning addition to any grand entryway, formal living room, or dining space. Their versatile design allows them to complement both traditional and contemporary interiors, serving as functional yet highly decorative elements. Each Measures: 47" x 26" x 35"
