PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

This expertly prepared taxidermy specimen features a Southern Yellow-billed Hornbill (Tockus leucomelas), a striking bird native to the arid savannas of southern Africa. Notable for its long, curved yellow beak and bold black-and-white plumage, the hornbill is mounted in a naturalistic pose on a sculptural piece of driftwood affixed to a circular wooden base. The mounting highlights the bird's expressive profile and distinctive feather pattern, making it a compelling decorative or educational piece. Ethically sourced and professionally preserved, it adds a touch of exotic elegance and curiosity to any interior or natural history collection. 17"H
